

ABSTRACT

The present invention aims at performing a semiconductor integrated circuit defect analysis with a simplified analysis apparatus and simplifying a defect analysis work. A defect analysis apparatus for a semiconductor integrated circuit is characterized in that a presence/absence of a defect is detected by irradiating an electromagnetic field from a probe to the semiconductor integrated circuit and detecting an electric characteristic variation such as a power supply current variation in the semiconductor integrated circuit.